Fascinating Hair

Easy to Stop Hair Falling Out, and Dandruff Also.

No one doubts that it is the duty of every woman to look as charming as possible. Every woman knows why she wants to be beautiful and attractive.

A woman with scant hair, dull and lifeless, has lost half her charm. How many times have you heard the expression, "The crowning glory of a woman is her hair!" Nowadays, thanks to Parian Sage, almost every woman can have hair so radiant and so glorious that it attracts, fascinates and compels admiration.

Parian Sage, the scientific and ideal hair rejuvenator and tonic, will cause hair to grow. It will turn harsh, withered hair into lustrous and bewitchingly luxuriant hair in a few days.

It is the most delightful hair dressing that kills the dandruff germs, stops falling hair, and eradicates dandruff in two weeks, or your money back.

Go to the Red Cross Pharmacy and buy a large 50-cent bottle on the money-back plan.

SENATE INQUIRY WAITS.

Elkins Has Not Yet Relented in His Opposition to Lodge.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The Senate's much-advertised inquiry into the causes of high prices still hangs fire, awaiting the return to Washington of Senators Aldrich and Crane, who have in hand the delicate task of organizing an efficient committee. Senator Elkins of West Virginia has not yet relented in his opposition to Senator Lodge for chairman and prefers Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, who does not want the job.

The Elkins opposition to Lodge is amazing, from one point of view, for the action of Senator Lodge in presenting his own resolution was taken only at the instance of the committee on finance, hence Mr. Elkins is opposing instead of one man, the whole organization on the Republican side, yet for no such patriotic reasons as impel the professional insurgency of men like Beveridge and Cummins. How the leaders will manage to quiet Senator Elkins is still as much a puzzle as ever.

CUTWORMS AND THEIR CURE.

Fall Plowing Beneficial or Late Planting of Corn.

The term cutworm is one of broad application and gives very little idea as to the identity of the species causing the trouble. As a rule, cutworms are somewhat general feeders and are more likely to be abundant in recently-turned grassland or on areas which have been weedy the preceding season. The eggs of the parent moths are usually laid about mid-summer. The young caterpillars feed for a time in the fall and pass the winter in a partly-grown condition. These caterpillars are therefore apt to be very hungry in a relatively clean corn field at the time the corn begins to sprout, and hence may cause serious injury, says a prominent entomologist in the County Gentleman.

Damage to corn by cutworms is effectually prevented by mid-autumn or early fall plowing of the grasslands to be planted the succeeding season. The pasturing of swine on grass or clover land to be used for corn is also very beneficial. The pests may be destroyed by distributing, with the aid of a seed drill, a line of dried bran or middlings, each 30 pounds of this being prepared by mixing therewith a pound of paris green. Freshly-cut clover, dipped into strong paris green water or sprayed with a poisonous preparation, may be used instead of dried bran. Occasionally, especially in the case of the so-called grass webworm, the injury is confined largely to the edges of the fields. These latter pests can best be circumvented by plowing in the early fall, or if this is inoperative, delaying the planting of the corn as long as possible. Injury by both cutworms and webworms may be mitigated somewhat by planting an abundance of seed.

Ants occasionally injure corn directly by attacking the young plant and then seriously weakening it. This trouble is relatively rare and can be controlled, so far as we know, only by destroying the ants. Should these insects be sufficiently abundant in a recently-planted field and their nests evident, we would suggest digging a little powdered cyanide of potassium (is most deadly poison) about the nests. The ants succumb in attempting to remove the poison. Generally speaking, ants are much more likely to be injurious because of their prospecting and establishing on the corn roots colonies of the corn root aphid, a very troublesome species in the middle state. Entomologist Fred. Forbes, state entomologist of Illinois, has shown considerable benefit to result from the use of three ounces of a 10 per cent solution of oil of lemon and alcohol to each gallon of corn, thought in some instances practical trials by farmers resulted in noticeable injury to the seed.

FATAL SHOOTING AFFAIR.

Two Women and a Man Dead as the Result.

Toronto, Can., Feb. 13.—Two women and a man are dead as the result of a shooting affair here yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Rebecca Davis and her daughter, Mrs. Martha Washington, were murdered by William Withers, who later committed suicide, but before he took his life he held several policemen at bay for three hours. He barricaded himself in a house and each fusillade of the officers was returned by Withers. Finally, when his supply of ammunition became exhausted, he went to the attic and sent a bullet through his brain. It is thought that Withers went to the house and demanded that Mrs. Washington return to live with him and, not being successful, resolved on murder and suicide.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a stomach, liver or kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure as slight cough. Best for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, jaundice, malaria and debility. 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

More to the Point.

Doctor politely, but looking at his watch with impatience—Pardou me, madam, but my time is not my own. You have given me all your symptoms in sufficient detail, and now perhaps you will kindly—er—ah—

Husband not so considerate—Maria, he doesn't want to hear your tongue any more; he wants to look at it—New York Journal.

Among the Debris.

Junior Partner—What's the trouble? Did an auto run amuck in the store?
Senior Partner—Worse than that. The manager hired an experimenter last night and told him to be sure to punch the time clock when he came in this morning.—Puck.

Gray Hair.

The Logical Explanation.

There is a great deal of misinformation about the cause of the hair and the cause of hair falling out prematurely. It is a fact that in some families gray hair is hereditary, like blue eyes or quick temper. Science, however, has proved that gray hair is simply a lack of the proper hair food, and in every case an individual problem. Premature gray hair is easily preventable, and when it does appear it is necessary to apply some reliable hair food such as HAY'S HAIR HEALTH. This standard remedy is entirely harmless and its use exacts no effort, being a preparation that is exactly fitted to the condition of the scalp needs to keep the hair from becoming thin, falling out, or becoming gray. One of the most valuable tones on the scalp of the hair can be had from the Hay's Hair Health Company, Newark, N. J., U. S. A.

THE MIDNIGHT TRAIN

"You're not going out again tonight, Leonard? It is so late!"

"I must, but I won't be long. Don't sit up for me."

Oiga's dark eyes filled with tears as she assented. She had thought it was going to be so different when she had come up from her aunt's dull home to live with her brother in the city, but Leonard only kissed her and was gone.

"I know he is mixed up with some dreadful people," Oiga Thurston thought as she returned to the little sitting room and raked the dying embers of the fire into a glowing heap. "Because poor mother was a Russian, Leonard thinks himself bound to fraternize with all the black sheep who come over here. Why can't he be content with nice English friends like the Cunninghams?"

A blush overspread her face as she remembered Hugh Cunningham's parting that very afternoon crossed her mind, and she could feel once more the warm pressure of the hand and hear the melior voice saying: "Good-by, Oiga. I will come again tomorrow."

She had risen to extinguish the lamp before retiring to her own room when she heard the sound of a key being turned in the front door, and, fearing lest Leonard should be angry if he found her still up, she slipped behind a curtain that was drawn across the window to wait until he had gone to his room. To her dismay, however, her brother was not alone.

His friends Kroustak and Schreiber were with him, and they began to speak at once, evidently continuing a conversation.

"You understand what you have to do," said Schreiber, addressing Leonard. "I will tell you once more, that you make up mistakes. The train bearing that infernal villain passes your station here at 12:40 and reaches Redville at 1:05. You must get in here and leave the train again at Redville, and mind you select the carriage in front of the saloon and leave your parcel under the seat as close to the partition as you can get it."

"How long will it last as it is?" asked Leonard in faltering tones.

"For an hour and a half. It is set to go off at 1:20, and the train will be halfway between Redville and Letterham then. That gives you plenty of time, even allowing for delays."

Schreiber had spoken in English, though with a strong foreign accent, and the trembling girl behind the window curtain had heard every word with a shuddering horror not only on account of the dastardly crime they were plotting, but because she remembered that Captain Cunningham was quartered at Letterham and that he was dining in London that night and would almost certainly go back by the midnight train. The conspirators left almost immediately, first carrying together the room a square package done up in brown paper and placing it carefully on a chair.

As in a dream Oiga watched Leonard through a rent in the curtain. Hearing drunk or some whiskey, he picked up his burden and left himself out at the door. Within five minutes a closely veiled figure was following him, and the brother and sister reached the station simultaneously. They took tickets for Redville and Letterham respectively, Oiga getting into a compartment at the end of the train and Leonard entering the one next to the saloon carriage.

At Redville both got out, and Oiga had the satisfaction of seeing her brother hurry away, while she speedily took his place and perceived to her horror that a man in a fur coat was waiting in a corner.

She had learned from a porter that the train stopped once more halfway to Letterham, and with all her heart she prayed that the awful thing might not go off until she could get out with it at the little roadside station. She sat trembling from head to foot.

At last came a shrill whistle, and with her heart beating in her throat as it seemed to her, Oiga began to grope under the seat.

The man in the fur lined coat sat up. "Can I help you to find anything?" he asked, and Oiga saw that one of her fears was realized, for it was Hugh Cunningham.

"No; please don't—don't touch it!" she gasped, and as the train stopped she lifted the parcel and placed it on the seat.

It was very heavy, and from it came a terrible ticking sound, which the noise of the train had prevented them from hearing before. Hugh looked at her curiously.

"Oiga!" he exclaimed. "What is this?" He got out quickly, but in the delay caused by having to give up his ticket he lost sight of her, and she ran swiftly down the dark road away from the station.

She dared not go too far. A gate leading into a big field invited her to enter. She did so and, having set down the awful package, turned back again with long, sobbing breaths. As she reached the gate an explosion rent the air, and with a wall of anguished mingled with relief, Oiga fell into Hugh's arms.

Perfect confidence reigns between Captain and Mrs. Cunningham except at one point. He has never sought to learn how she became acquainted with the plot to assassinate the Russian minister, and when Oiga receives her American letters he does not ask to see them. And each mail makes her happier for it brings word of honest work and true repentance and a real gratitude to the brave little sister who saved Leonard Thurston from bearing the brand of Cain.—Keystone.

Science, however, has proved that gray hair is simply a lack of the proper hair food, and in every case an individual problem. Premature gray hair is easily preventable, and when it does appear it is necessary to apply some reliable hair food such as HAY'S HAIR HEALTH. This standard remedy is entirely harmless and its use exacts no effort, being a preparation that is exactly fitted to the condition of the scalp needs to keep the hair from becoming thin, falling out, or becoming gray. One of the most valuable tones on the scalp of the hair can be had from the Hay's Hair Health Company, Newark, N. J., U. S. A.

Gray Hair.

The Logical Explanation.

There is a great deal of misinformation about the cause of the hair and the cause of hair falling out prematurely. It is a fact that in some families gray hair is hereditary, like blue eyes or quick temper. ABOUT THE STATE

The senior class of the Proctor high school acted $111 at the opera, "Sylvia," which was given there last week. This sum is to be used toward defraying the expenses of the trip to Washington.

W. G. Fish of North Clarendon, employed at the G. H. Grison factory in Rutland, sustained a severe and deep cut in the left wrist Friday while at work, severing several large blood vessels.

The St. Albans Choral union is practicing for the festival to be held June 1 and 2. Fully 250 men and women are rehearsing, and it is expected the Boston Orchestral club will attend. The soloists have not been decided upon. Rehearsals will be held every Tuesday and Wednesday until June.

All through the winter, when feed was high and no eggs were forthcoming, Fred G. Bucklin of Rutland was trying to rear a flock of pullets. Within the past few weeks the hens have begun to lay freely, and then Friday night one of a neighbor's terrier dog got into the flock and chewed up eight of the pullets.

There is every indication that Lake Bomoseen will have a new summer hotel during 1910. Negotiations are nearly closed between Edward Dunn of Castleton and New York parties for the sale of five acres of Mr. Dunn's land on the east side of the lake as a hotel site. Mr. Dunn would not give details, but he admitted that his terms had been accepted.

Dolphus Dewing, 80 years old, of Franklin, has milked more cows, probably, than any other man in the state. His father milked as many as 70 cows a season. Dolphus commenced milking ten years old, milking ten cows, morning and night. Then the average became thirty a day. Mr. Dewing has milked cows 71 years and must have milked about three-fourths of a million. If anyone can beat this record in the state, he is anxious to hear the worst.

A very early spring followed the winter of 1909, which was much like the present one. The almost total disappearance of frost from the ground in that winter, and the fact that the snow was melted early in the spring, were the cause of the early start of the season. The high water was settled in places, S. C. Lyons began ploughing the farm lands that lay south of his residence, in the northeastern part of Bennington, as early as March 12.

There is plenty of work at the Bennington Machine works, of which C. H. Scott is proprietor, and the prospect of its continuance is excellent. The concern is now turning out three grinders for the additional equipment of the largest wood pulp mill in Nova Scotia. These grinders weigh ten tons each and are as large as any that the establishment has ever made. The foundry work, which is done for the Halse Manufacturing company of Arlington, the Eagle Square company of Shaftsbury, the Cooper company of Bennington and other concerns, is also large.

The old plant of the Creamery Package Manufacturing company in Rutland will be opened this spring two months earlier than usual. Men are now being hired, and a large storage shed is being erected on the east side of the mill. Manager C. P. Cooper states that he has a large number of orders, and that the concern is coming in every day. Some additional machinery will be installed at once. The old business has grown steadily ever since it started, many years ago, and the Green Mountain hills are seen all over the eastern states.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpeltide is in Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article which is intended to do. Many Herpeltide users may look nice and small, but the point is—do they eradicate dandruff and stop falling hair?

Yes, they do not, but Herpeltide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newborn Herpeltide stands the "real test" of use.

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

Sold by leading druggists. Send the enclosed for sample to The Herpeltide Co., One Dollar Bottles Guaranteed. E. A. Drew, Special Agent.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CIVIL AUTHORITY

The board of civil authority will meet for the purpose of revising the checklist to be used at the March election. Said meeting will be held in the city court room on the evening of Wednesday, February 16, 1910, at 7 o'clock.

James Mackay, City Clerk.
